The annual program is held every March in Washington, D.C. Two student delegates from each state spend a week experiencing their national government in action. The delegates hear major policy addresses by U.S. senators, cabinet members, officials from the Departments of State and Defense and directors of other federal agencies, as well as participate in a meeting with a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. The Hearst Foundations provide all transportation, hotel and meal expenses. Additionally, each delegate receives a $10,000 college scholarship for undergraduate studies, with encouragement to pursue coursework in history and political science.
